ECOSOC

Life in seas and oceans risks irreparable damage from the rising tide of plastic waste.

The Great Pacific garbage patch is rapidly expanding and dozens of million tons of plastic are now clogging waterways, killing birds and fish and spoiling the food chain.

According to UNEP, United Nations Environment Programme, if current pollution rates continue, by 2050 there will be more plastic in the sea than fish. How can the world's governments and international institutions tackle this global crisis and reverse this destructive trend?

HRC

The digital age does not guarantee freedom of information and speech. In many countries, journalists have to face censorship, beatings and sometimes death for reporting news that may be not in the interest of power holders. Even in developed and freer nations, news and information are subject to partiality, coverage and omissions and the rise of fake news and deliberate disinformation can no longer be underestimated. What could member states do, to uphold and protect press media freedom and at the same time fight misinformation?
